

Wind Energy 101: From a Landowner's Perspective

Monday, February 8, 2010 Program: 1:30 PM - 4:00 PM

Freeport Public Library

Have heard there is interest in your area? Have you been approached by a developer?

Join us for this introductory program on how landowners and the community can effectively work with wind energy developers from start to finish. Coordinated by the Illinois Wind Working Group, and University of Illinois Extension, Wind Energy 101 will feature University educators and industry professionals. The program will answer questions about how wind energy developments effect landowners, what landowners should expect, and best practices for landowners to follow when working with developers.

FEATURED SPEAKERS:

- David Loomis, Associate Professor of Economics, Illinois State University & Director, Illinois Wind Working Group
- Stanley Solomon, Jr., Extension Educator - Engineering Technology
University of Illinois Extension
- William M. Shay, Attorney at Law

Pre-registration by February 3rd is requested to insure seating and materials.

Please pre-register at web.extension.uiuc.edu/Stephenson
